Rome, May 1. N. S.

THE Clergy of the German Church Dell' Anima, and of that of St Antonio belonging the Portugueſe, having ſubmitted to the Pope's Viſitation, their Suſpenſion is taken off. Cardinal Janſon had lately an Audience of the Pope, wherein he was very earneſt with him to diſpatch the Bulls for ſeveral Perſons whom the Duke of Anjou had named to vacant Benefices in Valentia and Catalonia; but he ſtill refuſes to grant them. Letters from Naples of the 27th paſt ſay, there had been felt in Calabria violent Shocks of an Earthquake, which had in a manner ruined the Towns of Aquila, Catanzarano, Belignano, and ſeveral other neighbouring Towns.

Madrid, May 2. The Conſternation of the Court here is daily encreaſed, by the frequent Advices we receive of the Progreſſes of the Confederate Troops under the Earl of Galway, which having repaired the Breaches of Alcantara, and left a good Garriſon there, and having poſſeſſed themſelves of Coria, Placentia, and ſeveral other Places thereabouts, the Inhabitants willingly ſubmitting to King Charles III. came afterwards to Almaraz, ſecured the Stone Bridge on the Tagus, called the Archbiſhop's Bridge, and advanced to Talavera de la Reyna, and, as ſome Advices ſay, even to Toledo, being received every where with Demonſtrations of a general Diſpoſition in favour of the Houſe of Auſtria; ſo that in all probability they may ſhortly be expected here. A Camp is forming to cover this Place towards Aranjuez, and thither all the Knights of the Three Military Orders, and the Militia of this Town and the neighbouring Country, are ordered to march. The Duke of Berwick having dreined the Garriſon of Badajos, and our other Frontier Towns on that ſide, is alſo expected in that Camp, as is likewiſe the Conde de las Torres with the Troops under his Command: But beſides, that all theſe will not form a Body of Men ſtrong enough to defend us. Our Court is very jealous of their Inclinations towards their natural and lawful Sovereign, and ſeem to have a greater Dependance upon the Duke of Anjou's Return this way with the French Forces, to which he will find himſelf obliged, both by the Danger which the Dutcheſs and his Miniſtry here are in, and by the ill Succeſs he meets with in the Siege of Barcelona.

Venice, May 7. We have an Account from Salo, That Count Alberg tti having paſſed the Mincio about the end of laſt Month with 30 Battalions and 2000 Dragoons, attempted to diſpoſſeſs the Imperialiſts of La Ferrara, and ſome other Poſts they had near the Adige at the bottom of the Hills of Montebaldo. That he began with the attacking a Poſt called Camporengo; but being obliged to march thither through a Defile, the Germans had poſted themſelves ſo advantagiouſly at the head of it, that the French were obliged to retire with very great Loſs, which ſome Advices compute at 1200 Men, killed and wounded, and 400 taken Priſoners; others make it under 1000; but they all agree, that the Loſs on the ſide of the Germans was inconſiderable. The Duke of Vendoſme is encamped with his Right to the Adige, over againſt Pontone, and his Left at Garda. The German Troops that were in the Poleſines are marched towards Verona: Another Body of them has ſecured the Poſts of St. Michael and St. Martin.

Presbourg, May 8. This Evening the Armiſtice with the Malecontents was continued for Two Months longer; and the 22d the Treaty for a Peace is to be entred upon.

Vienna, May 9. Our laſt Letters from Hungary have brought us the welcome News of a Ceſſation of Arms, being concluded with the Malecontents for two Months, with a good Proſpect of improving it into a firm and laſting Peace, whereby that Country may be ſecured for the future againſt the Troubles and Calamities under which it has lately ſuffered to ſo great a degree. They write from Tranſilvania, That the Supplies of Money and Ammunition, with the Cloathing, lately ſent to the Imperial Forces there, are ſafely arrived; and that General Herbeville, who commands them, has contracted with the Turks on thoſe Frontiers for Horſes to remount his Cavalry. Leopolſtad and Trenſchin, which had been blocked up by the Malecontents, are now ſupplied with Proviſions and Ammunition; and the like Care is taken to fill the Magazines of Comorra, Gran, Buda, and ſeveral other Places; tho' we hope the good Iſſue of the Negociations that are now on foot will render thoſe Precautions unneceſſary, and that the Imperial Troops now on that ſide may ſhortly be more uſefully employed againſt the Common Enemy.

From Prince Lewis of Baden's Camp at Stollhofen, May 14. The Town of Haguenau ſurrendred to the Enemy the 11th Inſtant: Their Army is now encamped between Langencandel and Croon-Weiſſembourg. The Reinforcement they had received from the Netherlands being ſent back thither, it is not believed they have Thoughts of attempting any thing further. In the mean time our Troops arrive daily; the Duke of Wirtemberg is come near Philipsbourg with 8000 Men, in order to join us: The Troops of Heſſe and Hanover are likewiſe marching this way; and it is expected that our Army will be compleat by the 20th Inſtant, when we ſhall be able to march out of our Lines towards the Enemy.

From the Duke of Marlborough's Camp at Borchloen, May 20. N. S. Yeſterday the Engliſh Troops came to Bilſen; and this Day the Army of the States marched from Tongeren to this Place, where the Engliſh likewiſe joined us. The French having dreined all their Garriſons, paſſed the Dyle yeſterday, and have poſted themſelves at Tirlemont, with the Gheeſt before them: Whereupon my Lord Duke has ſent Orders to the Daniſh Troops that are coming from their Garriſons to haſten their March: We expect them the 22d Inſtant; and then his Grace reſolves to advance towards the Enemy.

Hague, May 21. N. S. Letters from Paris of the 17th Inſtant, which came in this Day, do all agree, That a Courier arrived at the French Court the 15th, being ſent by the Count de Toulouſe, with Advice of his being come the 11th to the Iſles of Hieres, having left Barcelona Road the 8th, upon the Approach of Sir John Leake, who came thither with about 45 or 50 Men of War. They add, that the Appearance of our Fleet had given great Encouragement to the Catalans, who very much incommoded the Beſiegers, all the Inhabitants both of the Town and Country, that were able to bear Arms, engaging in the Defence both of their King and Liberty: So that the Enemy in their turn were now in a manner beſieged both by Sea and Land; and it is not queſtioned but they have been obliged to raiſe the Siege. This good Diſpoſition of the Spaniards towards their natural Prince appears not only in Catalonia and Valentia, but likewiſe in Caſtile, where the Inhabitants, and particularly the Clergy, have been very forward to declare for his Catholick Majeſty, whenever they were encouraged thereto by the Arrival of our Forces, and the Aſſurances of being protected by them.

Falmouth, May 11. The Charity of Dram in Norway, laden with Deals for this Port, arrived here the 8th Inſtant. The next Day came in from cruizing the Seven Provinces, a Dutch Privateer, which about 10 Days ago took a ſmall French Privateer, of 4 Guns and 35 Men, and ſent her for Holland. Yeſterday came in from the Eaſtward Her Majeſty's Ships the Naſſau and Squirrel. The Emanuel of Gottembourg, bound from thence to Briſtol, and laden with Deals, put into this Port about the ſame time. This Day came in here the Anna Chriſtiana, of and from Dram, Jacob Corperſon Maſter, bound for this Port, and the St. John, of and from Arundel, Michael Johnſon Maſter, for Leverpoole, both laden with Deals.

Briſtol, May 10. This Day came in here a Merchant-man from Spain, but laſt from Corke: The Com-
